AIRSHIPS AGAIN FLY OVER PARIS

Zeppelin Raiders Drop Half a Hundred Bombs.

DAMAGE SAID TO BE SLIGHT

Seven or Eight Persons Are Reported Injured, but Only One Seriously. Official French Version of the Attack Declares It to Have Been a Complete Failure.

Paris, March 22.—Zeppelin airships raided Paris and its suburbs and dropped half a hundred bombs, but the damage done was unimportant.

Seven or eight persons were injured, but only one seriously.

Four of the aircraft started for the capital, following the valley of the Oise, but only two reached their goal.

Missiles also were dropped at Compiègne, Ribecourt and Dresincourt, but without serious result.

Paris remained calm while the aerial invasion was in progress. Inhabitants of the city exhibited more curiosity than fear of the results. Trumpets gave the signal that all lights must be extinguished when warning came of the aircraft's approach.

Searchlights were turned upon the clouds, anti-aircraft guns opened fire and aeroplanes rose to attack the Zeppelins, but their fire was handicapped by a heavy mist.

An official communication regarding the raid follows:

"Between 1:15 a. m. and 3 a. m. four Zeppelins started toward Paris from the direction of Compiègne, following the valley of the Oise. Two were compelled to return before reaching Paris, one at Rouen, the other at Nantes. The other two were attacked by anti-aircraft guns and only passed over outlying districts of the north-western part of Paris and neighboring suburbs.

"They withdrew after having dropped a dozen bombs, some of which did not explode. The damage done was unimportant. Seven or eight persons were injured, but only one seriously.

"The Zeppelins were fired upon by anti-aircraft guns. One appeared to have been hit. The aeroplane squadron took part in the action, but mist hampered pursuit.

"Summing up, the Zeppelin raid of Paris was a complete failure. It only served to demonstrate how well the defensive arrangements work. The population was calm. On their way back the Zeppelins dropped a dozen incendiary or explosive bombs on Compiègne, doing only unimportant damage. Three bombs were dropped on Ribecourt and Dresincourt, to the north of Compiègne, without result."

YOUNG WOMAN IS ARRESTED

Osborne's Accuser Charged With Using Mails to Defraud.

New York, March 21.—Rae Taenzer, pretty factory forewoman, who sued former Assistant District Attorney J. W. Osborne for $50,000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage, was arrested at the office of her attorneys on a federal warrant charging her with using mails to defraud.

Her suit against Osborne created a sensation. He insisted he had never seen the woman. Her attorneys issued defiant challenges to him.

Things came to a rapid climax, when a strapping young man, who said he was the Oliver Osborne Miss Taenzer referred to, came to the office of Osborne's law partner and said he had known Miss Taenzer and had received letters from her.

He said he lived in Boston and came here when he realized J. W. Osborne was improperly facing a charge. He went to Osborne's home and told the story to Osborne and his wife.

3,000,000 ALLIED LOSS, SAY GERMANS

Russia Estimated to Have Contributed Two-thirds.

Berlin, March 22.—A conservative computation of the losses suffered by the allies in killed, wounded, disabled and prisoners reaches 3,000,000 men, according to the Vossische Zeitung. The basis of that estimate is as follows:

At the end of January 535,000 Russian prisoners were interned in Germany and Austria. The Paris Temps gives the number of killed in the Russian army as about 675,000. If on account of the great number of killed we take only three wounded for one killed we arrive at 2,025,000 wounded. Supposing that 50 per cent of the wounded are able to return to the front the permanent losses of the Russians are 1,010,000 disabled by wounds. If only 80,000 Russians have been disabled by disease the total permanent loss of the Russian army during the first six months of the war can be estimated as high as 2,300,000.

Taking the French and British estimates of their dead and Germany's record of men captured the total French loss nears the 1,000,000 mark and that of England 70,000. Belgium's casualty list is not far from 130,000. Therefore, the total losses of the allies, not including Serbian casualties during the first six months of the war, can safely be estimated at 3,600,000 men.

WOMEN RESPOND TO APPEAL

London, March 22.—More than 7,000 women, representing all classes of society, already have responded to the government's appeal for female workers to take the places of men in business and industry, that more recruits may be provided for Lord Kitchener's great army.

Allied Warships Will Continue Shelling Turkish Forts.

GAULOIS IS BADLY DAMAGED

French Battleship Was Hit by Several Shells Along the Water Line While Bombarding Dardanelles Forts and the Weather Is Too Stormy to Permit Repairs Being Made.

Paris, March 22.—Admirals of the allied fleet who conferred Friday aboard the French flagship Suffren regarding their future course in attempting to force a passage of the Dardanelles are believed to have decided unanimously to renew soon the general attack, says a dispatch to the Havas agency.

The French battleship Gaulois, the dispatch says, which was badly damaged along the water line by shells from the Turkish forts, is anchored in deep water off Mavris island, while her sister ship, the Charlemagne, is standing by to offer assistance, if it is needed. It has been found difficult to make immediate repairs to the Gaulois because of stormy weather and high seas.

Complete details of the damage suffered by the forts has not been obtained, but the allied commanders believe it was serious. Fort Kum Kaleh, which has been repaired by the Turks, directed an accurate fire against the warships.

Torpedo boats are dragging along the shores of the Dardanelles for the bodies of drowned sailors, which are placed aboard the hospital ships Canada and Soudan as soon as they are found. Women living along the shores of the Greek islands near the Dardanelles, the correspondent says, are casting flowers into the waters of Aegean sea, while they offer prayers for the unidentified dead.

BAD WEATHER INTERFERES

Warships Unable to Renew Attack on Dardanelles.

London, March 22.—The admiralty made the following statement:

"Unfavorable weather has interrupted the operations in the Dardanelles and as seaplane reconnoissances have not been possible the amount of damage done to the forts by the bombardment of the 18th cannot be ascertained.

"No great expectations should, however, be based on this, as owing to the losses caused by drifting mines the attack was not pressed to its conclusion on that date.

"The power of the fleet to dominate the fortress by superiority of fire seems to be established."

She then returned and was taken in charge by the collector of customs.

Permission to sail was refused the Odenwald by the collector, pending instructions from Washington. The steamer has been at San Juan since Aug. 6. She was bound for European ports from the West Indies with freight and passengers and sought refuge here. Three days ago she began coaling and taking on provisions.

Failing to obtain the necessary clearance papers her commander apparently decided to risk the attempt to put to sea. A heavy gun on Morro Castle sent two shots across her bow in way of warning, but it was not until the machine gun opened a direct fire that the steamer stopped and headed back to port.

(By United Press)

Petrograd, March 22.—The Russian war department gives out the information that the Austro-German losses in the attempted sorties from Przemyśl and the fighting in the vicinity of Tarnow reached over 40,000. The enemy's entire campaign in the Carpathians was overthrown.

Russians Evacuate

(By United Press)

Berlin, March 22.—An official announcement from the war department of Germany states that the Russians have evacuated Memel, a German seaport which they occupied, according to dispatch of the 20th.

ADMIRALS AGREE TO PRESS ATTACK

Allied Warships Will Continue Shelling Turkish Forts.

GAULOIS IS BADLY DAMAGED

French Battleship Was Hit by Several Shells Along the Water Line While Bombarding Dardanelles Forts and the Weather Is Too Stormy to Permit Repairs Being Made.

Paris, March 22.—Admirals of the allied fleet who conferred Friday aboard the French flagship Suffren regarding their future course in attempting to force a passage of the Dardanelles are believed to have decided unanimously to renew soon the general attack, says a dispatch to the Havas agency.

The French battleship Gaulois, the dispatch says, which was badly damaged along the water line by shells from the Turkish forts, is anchored in deep water off Mavris island, while her sister ship, the Charlemagne, is standing by to offer assistance, if it is needed. It has been found difficult to make immediate repairs to the Gaulois because of stormy weather and high seas.

Complete details of the damage suffered by the forts has not been obtained, but the allied commanders believe it was serious. Fort Kum Kaleh, which has been repaired by the Turks, directed an accurate fire against the warships.

Torpedo boats are dragging along the shores of the Dardanelles for the bodies of drowned sailors, which are placed aboard the hospital ships Canada and Soudan as soon as they are found. Women living along the shores of the Greek islands near the Dardanelles, the correspondent says, are casting flowers into the waters of Aegean sea, while they offer prayers for the unidentified dead.

BAD WEATHER INTERFERES

Warships Unable to Renew Attack on Dardanelles.

London, March 22.—The admiralty made the following statement: "Unfavorable weather has interrupted the operations in the Dardanelles and as seaplane reconnaissances have not been possible the amount of damage done to the forts by the bombardment of the 18th cannot be ascertained.

"No great expectations should, however, be based on this, as owing to the losses caused by drifting mines the attack was not pressed to its conclusion on that date.

"The power of the fleet to dominate the fortress by superiority of fire seems to be established."

NEW PASSPORT RULES RIGID

French Regulations Require Special Credentials for Foreigners.

Washington, March 22.—Details of new French passport regulations which require foreigners entering France to be provided with special credentials issued by French consuls were received at the state department from Ambassador Sharp. They require these credentials to show the evidence on which the passport was issued, the city in France to be visited, the purpose of the visit and also a photograph of the bearer.

Great care in issuing passports has been enjoined on consuls to prevent them from reaching citizens of Germany or Austria.

WHY JAPANESE ENVOY GOES

Foreign Office Says Mexican Chaos Demands Return of Minister.

Yokohama, March 22.—The forthcoming return to Japan of Minichiero Adachi, the Japanese minister to Mexico, the foreign office explains, is due to the chaotic conditions and the absence of a responsible government in Mexico.

AMERICAN OBSERVERS BACK

Six Army Officers Return to Berlin After Visiting Battle Front.

Berlin, March 22.—Six American army officers who left Berlin on March 14 for the eastern battle front returned here from Lodz after an inspection of the front near that city. They made daily excursions from Lodz and had an opportunity to witness artillery in action and inspect the aeroplane stations and airship gun projectors.

Everywhere they met with complaints regarding the delivery from the United States of ammunition to the allies.

London, March 22.—A Capetown dispatch to Reuters Telegram company says official announcement has been made that General Botha, premier and commander-in-chief of the army of the Union of South Africa, has captured more than 200 German prisoners and two field guns at Swakopmund, German Southwest Africa.

CANADIAN COLONEL SLAIN

Leader of Princess Patricia's Regiment Killed in Action.

Ottawa, Ont., March 22.—Colonel Farquhar of the Princess Patricia's regiment has been killed in action. Colonel Farquhar came to Ottawa in October, 1913, as military secretary to the Duke of Connaught and became a popular figure in official and social circles in the capital.

Colonel Farquhar is the third officer connected with Government House to fall in the present war.

The message from the war office read:

"Colonel Farquhar, Princess Patricia's, dead. Lieutenant Mason of same regiment dead. Three killed, twenty wounded."

Few British Seamen Killed.

London, March 22.—A statement by the admiralty shows the total casualties among the officers of the British ships in the fighting in the Dardanelles Thursday, when the Irresistible and Ocean were sunk, were four killed and two severely wounded on the Irresistible and three killed on the Inflexible. A casualty list of the men shows twenty on the Inflexible and four on the Irresistible were killed.

THREE HUNDRED MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

Four Sailing Vessels Lost in Furious Storm.

Algiciras, Spain, March 22.—Four sailing vessels, with ship dock laborers on board, have been lost in a furious storm. It is estimated that 300 persons on board the vessels were drowned.

HUNTS GAS LEAK; ONE DEAD

Woman Killed and Four Men Injured by Explosion.

Louisville, March 22.—A woman was killed and four men injured, one seriously, when the home of J. M. Matthews was wrecked by a natural gas explosion. Mrs. Emma Matthews died from the shock of the explosion. Charles C. McMahan, a son-in-law of Mrs. Matthews, received serious burns.

BARONESS IS HEARTBROKEN

Unable to Attain Aged Husband's Release From Germans.

Geneva, March 22.—A most pathetic figure at Berne is the aged Baroness de Magnanville of Paris, who is asking the aid of the Swiss government to obtain the liberation of her husband, eighty years old, after offering a ransom of $20,000. The Germans took Baron de Magnanville as a hostage near Noyon several months ago. Negotiations to obtain his release through the payment of a ransom failed in Berlin.

VESSEL TRIES TO LEAVE SAN JUAN

German Ship Stops When Fired on by Battery.

SOUGHT REFUGE ON AUG. 6

Merchant Steamer Attempts to Depart Without Clearance Papers and Pays No Attention to Two Shots Across Her Bow—Machine Gun Opens Direct Fire and Secures Quick Results.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 22.—The German merchant steamer Odenwald, which attempted to leave port without obtaining clearing papers, was stopped as she was passing out of the entrance to the harbor by two shots across her bow from a five-inch gun and direct shots from a Maxim. She then returned and was taken in charge by the collector of customs.

Permission to sail was refused the Odenwald by the collector, pending instructions from Washington. The steamer has been at San Juan since Aug. 6. She was bound for European ports from the West Indies with freight and passengers and sought refuge here. Three days ago she began coaling and taking on provisions.

Failing to obtain the necessary clearance papers her commander apparently decided to risk the attempt to put to sea. A heavy gun on Morro Castle sent two shots across her bow in way of warning, but it was not until the machine gun opened a direct fire that the steamer stopped and headed back to port.

BELGIANS SHOW GRATITUDE

Nearly 200 Letters Received by Relief Commission.

New York, March 22.—Nearly 200 letters, indicative of the gratitude to America of the people of Belgium for the assistance given them have been received by the commission for relief in Belgium. Other communications are in the form of resolutions drawn up by the population of entire towns and communes.

An official of Zeelhem wrote that all the population of the commune would remember "that if it has been spared the curse of famine, it owes this to you, the American nation, towards whom turn all the nations of the world, because the world feels itself dominated by the power of peace and the justice which is yours."

Another letter from Jette St. Pierre declared that America clothed 1,500 of her families and fed 4,000.

BURLESON ACCUSES ROADS

Postmaster General Will Renew His Mail Recommendation.

Washington, March 22.—Postmaster General Burleson issued a statement reiterating the charge that certain railroads brought about the defeat of the postoffice appropriation bill in the last congress because of the provision in it for changing railway mail pay from a weight to a space basis, and formally announcing his intention to renew his recommendation for this change when the new congress reconvenes.

The railway mail committee, representing "certain railroads," the statement declared, engineered the fight against the appropriation bill and financed a propaganda designed to "mislead" and wrongfully influence the public in an attitude of antagonism to the department.

BRITISH SHIPPING LOSSES

Hundred and Forty-three Merchant Vessels Sunk Since War Began.

London, March 21.—German submarine raids during the week ending March 17 resulted in the loss of eight British vessels, with a total tonnage of 22,825, out of 1,539 arrivals and sailings, according to a summary issued by the admiralty. Three other vessels which were torpedoed were able to reach port.

The total losses to British commerce from the beginning of the war to March 17 were ninety-six merchant vessels and forty-seven fishing vessels.

WON HIS WAY
BY REAL PLUCK
Gang of Desperadoes Stir Up
the Wrong Man.

Phil Carlton when nineteen years old
married a country girl and took a position on the railroad as brakeman. The road ran through a semicivilized coun-
try. Phil's family lived in a log cabin.
Children came plentifully, demanding
food and clothes, and life was generally unattractive. Once in five years
Phil would make an application for a better position.

Up the road was a station, Alpena,
near which lived a gang of men who succeeded in always riding free. The way they managed it was this: A grim
countenance with a background of shocky hair and a sombrero would appear at the window and ask for a ticket. The agent would do the necessary
stamping and throw the ticket down,
mentioning the amount due. The applicant would pick up the ticket and walk
away without making any payment.
The agent knew if he declined to submit to this one sided way of doing business the applicant would poke a revolver through the opening and begin to shoot. Several agents had been put in charge of the station; but,
though the salary was $1,200 a year,
none of them considered it sufficient
pay for getting shot.

The superintendent on receipt of Phil's last application wrote him that
in view of his long and faithful service on the road he was promoted to be station agent at Alpena. The writer
chuckled as he dictated the letter and
congratulated himself upon not in future being troubled by the baggage-man's applications. As for Phil, he knew all about the gang's operations
and saw at once that unless he collected the fares he would be removed.
If he collected them, he must take his chances of being shot.

Since Phil had been known in the
country roundabout as a peaceable,
plodding fellow, so soon as the gang
heard of his appointment they made
up their minds to make more frequent
and longer trips. The second morning
after the new agent took his place in the office one of their number walked up to the window and asked for a ticket.

"Five dollars and thirty cents," said
Phil in a feeble voice.

"Gimme the ticket. I don't pay till
I git the goods," said the man, lazily
drawing a weapon from his hip.

Quick as a flash a revolver was thrust through the hole from within,
a shot rang out, and the applicant for
a ticket dropped dead.

There was no one else in the station
at the time, and Phil, going to the baggage room, took out an oblong box,
put the corpse in it, nailed down the
lid, tacked a card on it on which was written the address of the superintendent and sent it by the next train with an envelope. On a piece of paper he wrote to go with the rest:

Ticket sold this morning. Not used.
Don't know what to do with it or the money, so forward them to you. Corpse of the applicant in baggage car. Shall I kill any more of 'em?

PHIL CARLTON,
Station Agent, Alpena.

When the superintendent read this
note and learned from the bearer that there was a coffin shaped box in the baggage room awaiting his orders he
was more astonished than if he had been informed that the whole line of the road had been swallowed by an earthquake. He walked the floor for awhile in deep meditation, then took Phil's note to the president.

That afternoon there was a meeting
of the board of directors, with the road's attorney in attendance, who assured them that since Phil had not received orders to kill any applicant for
a ticket who refused to pay his fare,
none of them would be liable to be arrested and tried for murder. Phil was alone responsible; but, considering the lawless state of the country and the character of the unsuccessful applicant
for a free ride, it was not believed that the man who had shot him would be molested.

The body was sent back to Alpena
for burial, and Phil was directed not to kill any more deadhead ticket applicants.

But Phil did not need to kill any more of them. The others, taking warning from the fate of their companion, found it unnecessary to travel often thereafter on the road and when
they did, not being sure but the station
agent, fearing that they had come to practice their former methods, would shoot to kill, always paid their fare on the train. Indeed Phil Carlton's administration of the affairs of Alpena
station proved so satisfactory that he was summoned to the main office with a view to determining if he were not
capable of filling some important position. Not being an educated man,
this was not to be considered. So Phil
was made superintendent of stations,
at a salary of $5,500 a year. When the lawless citizens along the line interfered with the company's interests he was sent to overawe them. This was all that was required of him, and as his exploit at Alpena had made him
famous as a fighter he was never obliged to fight. His presence alone
was quite sufficient to restore the refractory to their senses.

Gradually the country along the line
of the road became civilized, and Philip's occupation, being gone, he was retired on two-thirds pay.

HOW THE WAR STARTED

The New York Sun tells in the following language all about it:

"In the first place," says the Sun, "a Serbian Socialist got drunk and killed an Austrian nobleman and his escort (or maybe his consort). Anyway it was some sort. Austrian then got hot under the collar over the incident and said to Serbia: 'See here, now, we don't want any of that rough stuff. I want to be a father to you. Come into the woodshed.' Russia was peeping through the fence when she heard the conversation, and seeing what was going on, said to Austria, 'Don't you dare touch that child. He is my kid and anyhow, you'd make a h— of a looking' doddie.' 'You've got another think coming,' answered
Austria. 'I don't like the color of your eyes, anyway, and your feet don't track besides, and I can lick you with one hand tied.'

'Bully Boy,' says Wilhelm of Germany. 'If you can't lick him I can, and by gosh I'll do it. I can lick anybody; I can lick every body. We'll take him on together.' So Germany slips up on France when she ain't looking and lands with both feet in the middle of Belgium. 'Get off'n my belly,' says Belgium, 'or I'll bite your leg off.' 'Ouch,' says Germany, 'but I'll get off when I get ready.' 'That's not fair,' says France. 'Take that, you slob,' handing Germany a hot one on the snoot. 'I hate a scrap,' says England, 'but I can smash the jaw of the guy that slaps my friend.' 'You don't hate it worse than I do,' says Japan, as she squares off for a hand in the game. 'Well, I guess you started it, anyhow,' says Wilhelm to Nick. Just then everybody begins to yell.
'You started it yourself!' and each one sticks out his tongue at the other fellow and they all clinch and the little fellows begin to dance around watching for a chance to get in a punch and run. And there you are.'

Taking After Father.
"It has its father's nose!"
"And its mother's eyes!"
"And Aunt Alice's mouth!"
"And Uncle Ebenezer's ears!"

Such, multiplied by about a hundred,
were the criticisms leveled by kind friends against the charming Fitzbood-
le baby.

Then the unconcerned baby began to
calmly chew his big toe.

"Ah!" murmured Mr. Fitzboodle.
"Baby is certainly endowed with some
of my wife's chief characteristics."
"Not to mention you, Fritz Fitzbood-
le!" snapped his wife. "Baby never opens his mouth without putting his
foot in it!"

For Brittle Nails.
You can't make your hands look nice
if your nails are very brittle, because
they always break off and show rough,
jagged edges. Brittle nails are often
constitutional, or a sign of poor health.
You can do a great deal toward curing
them in the following way:
Rub some pure cold cream or white
vaseline all over the nails and well
into the base at night. Once or twice a week apply a little olive oil, and
never wash the hands in hard water
or put them in strong soda water, for this aggravates the condition. The treatment described is a remedy for
hang nails also, for it keeps the skin
round the base of the nails pliable and
soft.

To Allay Pain of Burns.
Burns on the hands and arms are of
frequent occurrence to the housewife.
Aside from the pain caused, they do not add to one's charms. In case of a burn at once apply linseed or sweet
oil to the parts affected and then thickly cover with baking soda and bind
with a soft linen cloth. In ordinary cases of burn this will shortly relieve the pain. Equal parts of linewater and linseed oil applied to the burn
several times a day will keep it soft,
allay pain and hasten healing.

Whitening the Skin.
Regular applications of equal parts
of lemon juice and glycerin after washing do wonders in whitening the skin
and preventing the formation of discoloration marks upon the neck from
the constant wearing of furs. The glycerin helps to keep the skin pleasingly soft, also preventing it from getting that harsh, dry, shriveled up appearance which is so conducive to the formation of wrinkles on face and neck.

Even when living in Venice Byron used to hanker after goose at Michael-

one year he bought a goose in August so as to be well prepared for the feast.
"He fed it every day for a month pre-

Sept. 20 arrived he could not kill it.
He bought another and had the pet goose swung in a cage under his car-

WON HIS WAY
BY REAL PLUCK
Gang of Desperadoes Stir Up
the Wrong Man.
Phil Carlton when nineteen years old
married a country girl and took a position on the railroad as brakeman. The
road ran through a semicivilized coun-
try. Phil's family lived in a log cabin.
Children came plentifully, demanding
food and clothes, and life was generally unattractive. Once in five years
Phil would make an application for a
better position.
Up the road was a station, Alpena,
near which lived a gang of men who
succeeded in always riding free. The way they managed it was this: A grim
countenance with a background of
shocky hair and a sombrero would appear at the window and ask for a ticket. The agent would do the necessary
stamping and throw the ticket down,
mentioning the amount due. The applicant would pick up the ticket and walk
away without making any payment.
The agent knew if he declined to submit to this one sided way of doing
business the applicant would poke a
revolver through the opening and begin to shoot. Several agents had been put in charge of the station; but,
though the salary was $1,200 a year,
none of them considered it sufficient
pay for getting shot.
The superintendent on receipt of Phil's last application wrote him that
in view of his long and faithful service on the road he was promoted to be
station agent at Alpena. The writer
chuckled as he dictated the letter and
congratulated himself upon not in future being troubled by the baggage-
man's applications. As for Phil, he
knew all about the gang's operations
and saw at once that unless he collected the fares he would be removed. If he collected them, he must take his chances of being shot.
Since Phil had been known in the
country roundabout as a peaceable,
plodding fellow, so soon as the gang
heard of his appointment they made
up their minds to make more frequent
and longer trips. The second morning
after the new agent took his place in
the office one of their number walked
up to the window and asked for a
ticket.
"Five dollars and thirty cents," said
Phil in a feeble voice.
"Gimme the ticket. I don't pay till
I git the goods," said the man, lazily
drawing a weapon from his hip.
Quick as a flash a revolver was
thrust through the hole from within,
a shot rang out, and the applicant for
a ticket dropped dead.
There was no one else in the station
at the time, and Phil, going to the
baggage room, took out an oblong box,
put the corpse in it, nailed down the
lid, tacked a card on it on which was written the address of the superintendent and sent it by the next train with an envelope. On a piece of paper he wrote to go with the rest:
Ticket sold this morning. Not used.
Don't know what to do with it or the
money, so forward them to you. Corpse
of the applicant in baggage car. Shall I
kill any more of 'em?
PHIL CARLTON,
Station Agent, Alpena.
When the superintendent read this
note and learned from the bearer that
there was a coffin shaped box in the
baggage room awaiting his orders he
was more astonished than if he had
been informed that the whole line of
the road had been swallowed by an earthquake. He walked the floor for awhile in deep meditation, then took Phil's note to the president.
That afternoon there was a meeting
of the board of directors, with the
road's attorney in attendance, who assured them that since Phil had not received orders to kill any applicant for
a ticket who refused to pay his fare,
none of them would be liable to be arrested and tried for murder. Phil was
alone responsible; but, considering the
lawless state of the country and the character of the unsuccessful applicant
for a free ride, it was not believed that
the man who had shot him would be
molested.
The body was sent back to Alpena
for burial, and Phil was directed not to kill any more deadhead ticket applicants.
But Phil did not need to kill any more of them. The others, taking
warning from the fate of their companion, found it unnecessary to travel of-
ten thereafter on the road and when
they did, not being sure but the station
agent, fearing that they had come to
practice their former methods, would
shoot to kill, always paid their fare on
the train. Indeed Phil Carlton's administration of the affairs of Alpena
station proved so satisfactory that he
was summoned to the main office with a view to determining if he were not
capable of filling some important position. Not being an educated man,
this was not to be considered. So Phil
was made superintendent of stations,
at a salary of $3,500 a year. When the
lawless citizens along the line interfered with the company's interests he
was sent to overawe them. This was all that was required of him, and as
his exploit at Alpena had made him
famous as a fighter he was never obliged to fight. His presence alone
was quite sufficient to restore the re-
fractory to their senses.
Gradually the country along the line
of the road became civilized, and Philton's occupation, being gone, he was retired on two-thirds pay.

"And its mother's eyes!"
"And Aunt Alice's mouth!"
"And Uncle Ebenezer's ears!"
Such, multiplied by about a hundred,
were the criticisms leveled by some friends against the charming Fitzbood-
le baby.
Then the unconcerned baby began to
calmly chew his big toe.
"Ah!" murmured Mr. Fitzboodle.
"Baby is certainly endowed with some
of my wife's chief characteristics!"
"Not to mention you, Fritz Fitzbood-
le!" snapped his wife. "Baby never
opens his mouth without putting his
foot in it!"
His Finish.
Junior—I fear Briggs got into a lot of trouble with that girl he was going with.
Soph—Yes? How's that?
Junior—He married her.—Denver

For Brittle Nails.
You can't make your hands look nice
if your nails are very brittle, because
they always break off and show rough,
jagged edges. Brittle nails are often
constitutional, or a sign of poor health.
You can do a great deal toward curing
them in the following way:
Rub some pure cold cream or white
vaseline all over the nails and well
into the base at night. Once or twice a week apply a little olive oil, and
never wash the hands in hard water,
or put them in strong soda water, for
this aggravates the condition. The
treatment described is a remedy for
hang nails also, for it keeps the skin
round the base of the nails pliable and
soft.
To Alleviate Pain of Burns.
Burns on the hands and arms are of
frequent occurrence to the housewife.
Aside from the pain caused, they do
not add to one's charms. In case of a
burn at once apply linseed or sweet
oil to the parts affected and then thick-
ly cover with baking soda and bind
with a soft linen cloth. In ordinary
cases of burn this will shortly relieve the pain. Equal parts of lime water
and linseed oil applied to the burn
several times a day will keep it soft,
delay pain and hasten healing.
Whitening the Skin.
Regular applications of equal parts
of lemon juice and glycerin after washing do wonders in whitening the skin
and preventing the formation of discoloration marks upon the neck from
the constant wearing of furs. The
glycerin helps to keep the skin pleas-
ingly soft, also preventing it from getting that harsh, dry, shriveled up appearance which is so conducive to the formation of wrinkles on face and
neck.

Points for Mothers

A Bad Habit Cured.

A delightful experience is told by a teacher that touches upon a child, an imaginative boy of seven, who was ideally polite and obedient to his parents, but who would, in spite of daily admonitions, insist on putting on his shoes and buttoning them every morning before putting on his trousers, which, of course, would not go on over the shoes. This daily blunder rendered him quite miserable as well as his parents. He would cry with shame and disappointment because he missed his breakfast with his father, promising to try to remember, but so regularly forgetting that his parents began to suspect some latent stubbornness if not deceit in the occurrence.

The teacher was a friend of the family and often visited them. On the occasion of one visit the boy's mother asked her whether she should chastise him for this annoying habit. The visitor said she would write to him, which she did, but the letter was in the form of a story of General Bad Habit, who was quartered in his house. The boy was very fond of military displays and stories, and just here she held his interest. She said she was sorry General Bad Habit was there and that she greatly feared her little friend would be reduced to the ranks if he did not make immediate resistance, and she asked him to use her letter as a flag of truce, to be placed in his shoe overnight, informing General Bad Habit that he proposed not only to resist him, but to take away his title, sword and shoulder straps.

The flag of truce was used in the shoe for two or three nights, then placed on the mantle, and in less than a week entirely removed, and a letter from the triumphant child informed the teacher that Bad Habit was reduced to the ranks and the little friend was general and master of the situation. What an altogether charming way to help a child to overcome a failing!

About Children's Teeth.

If a child's second set of teeth remain abnormally short and doll-like it is wise to consult a doctor, as it may be because he is not developing properly owing to a lack of bone forming constituents in his food. One should change the diet in such a case and give something containing plenty of lime, such as haricots, lentils and milk; also they should have plenty of hard, well baked bread crusts.

Little heaps of crusts are often left on a child's plate. A child should never be allowed to leave them, for too much soft food is often the cause of the early decay of second teeth as well as of their undeveloped and irregular formation.

Man's teeth were given to him for grinding and chewing, and if they are never used for hard food they soon decay.

Ridged or ribbed teeth are a sure sign of a system overcharged with uric acid. Rheumatism is latent; these ridges are warning signals.

Do you know what these are? They are teeth that appear as though they had a "picot" edging or little sawlike edge to them, and they nearly always mean that the owner is below par. The serrated edge is really the commencement of a decay that will in time cause serious damage to the child's health.

A Mother's Secret of Success.

The well known proverb "Example is better than precept" is only another form of expressing the predominating power of sympathy, for example can have little influence except in so far as a sympathetic feeling in the observer leads him to imitate it. So that "Example is better than precept" means only that sympathy has more influence in the human heart than reasoning.

This principle, so powerful at every period of life, is at its maximum in childhood. The child's thoughts and feelings are spontaneously drawn into harmony with the thoughts and feelings of those around him whom he loves, and this leads naturally to imitation, or reproduction, of their actions.

The great secret of success for a mother in the formation of the character of her children is to make them respect and love her and then simply to be herself what she wishes them to be. Abbott says that to make them respect and love her is to control them by a firm government where control is required and to indulge them almost without limit where indulgence will do no harm. This is true, but we often forget the latter half and wonder at our failures.

Hardening Boys' Shoes.

"If you rub hardening oil into boys' shoes when you buy them," says a mother. "It makes them last twice as long, and renders them absolutely waterproof." You can make this hardening oil yourself. Put half an ounce of beeswax and half a pint of boiled linseed oil in a jar. Heat it over the stove till the wax dissolves. Let it cool, then stir up and apply to the soles of the boots with a brush. Put the boots on trees till the next morning, when they will be quite dry and ready to wear.

Woman's World

How a Great Dancer Teaches and Mothers "Her Children."

ANNA PAVLOVA.

Pavlova dances. Surrounded by chattering coryphees, hand on hip, head to one side in a pose of anticipation, she works out a terpsichorean problem. She has succeeded. The group parts, and she steps forth, leading a tall girl in shimmering blue classic dress. Pavlova reiterates the steps, the music breathing soft accompaniment. The girl imitates. Over and over the steps they work, Pavlova snapping her slender fingers, tossing her head, forcing into the figure the spirit which makes great dancing. And when the coryphee succeeds an approving pat on the shoulder rewards the radiant girl.

In rehearsal when the music is a bit uncertain, when the lights are blatant, when the vast orchestra and the vaguer balconies beyond are chilling in the unresponsive mustiness, the joy of Pavlova's dancing is as apparent as when she dances to crowded auditoriums. She colors the ballet, the director and the strangely gentle conductor of the orchestra. The final twirl is not coincident with the final chord. She steps out of the musical picture and shakes her head at the conductor. "Last four bars," orders Mr. Theodore Stier, and again the final twirl, still out of beat. Over and over she does that difficult twirl, the ballet does its intricate tableau and the orchestra its tempestuous finale. All watch her. She snaps her fingers. "One, two, three, four," marks time with her arms and smiles because it is art to achieve the difficult.

"She is the hardest working woman in the world," her agents, her directors and the rest of her adorners declare fervently. And to watch her and talk with her during an hour confirms the extravagant statement.

Far more than merely the director and teacher of these girls, she is their mother, speaking of them as "my children." They live with her. She sees to it that their other studies are not neglected. She watches them; will not allow them to go to parties or go out at night. Their street clothes are as quiet and unexaggerated as her own are. Never do they wear silk stockings on the street, for, besides being very bad for the feet, they are extravagant, and children must be taught not to be improvident.

And most important is their work. But that she teaches them less by word than by example, for they cannot fail to imitate the ardor with which she pursues her art all day and every day, to the exclusion of every other pleasure.

CHIC EASTER CREATION.

To Keep Silver Bright.

An easy way to keep silver bright is to put a handful of borax in a dishpan of hot water with a very little soap. Put the silver in this and let it stand the entire morning. Then rinse in clear water and wipe thoroughly dry with a soft cloth.

You can treat plated ware in the same manner without the slightest injury to the plate.

ACCUSED OF KILLING THREE

Negro Is Arrested at St. Louis for Illinois Murders.

St. Louis, March 22.—St. Louis police officials indicated the arrest here of Lovey Mitchell, a negro, would result in reopening investigations of thirty murders, committed since 1911, identical in nearly every detail. The crimes were committed at night while the victims lay asleep, and all came to their death by means of blows from an ax.

The warrant on which Mitchell was arrested charges him with the murder of William E. Dawson, a sexton, his wife and daughter, Georgia, thirteen years old, at Monmouth, Ill., on the night of Sept. 30, 1911.

Mitchell denies all knowledge of the crime and waived extradition. He was taken to Monmouth.

Words To The Wise

[No. 1]

This communication is an appeal to your common sense, to reason and justice.

Wise people think, and those who think cannot be deceived.

In this contest, as it proceeds we expect to depend upon truth for our success. Personalities shall be avoided.

Our fight is no against men, but against principles which we believe to be fundamentally wrong.

You have been asked, and will be continually urged, to vote for prohibition. Arguments against the abuse of liquor will be made and the people will be urged to apply these arguments to the right to use intoxicants.

This is unsound, unfair and unreasonable.

If you can apply the argument against excess to the right to use a thing in moderation you can abolish all good because some people abuse everything good in the world.

As this contest proceeds it will be observed that the dries want to be known as the "temperance people," "temperance workers," etc. They attempt to appropriate to themselves for very exclusive use the beautiful word "temperance" which applies not only to the moderate use of alcoholic beverages, but to all good things.

Temperance is the remedy for intemperance. Total abstinence is also a remedy for intemperance, but before either can be a virtue it must be self-imposed and self-enforced. Before law can become a remedy for intemperance it must be enforced against the user, not the seller. You can vote a town dry, but you cannot vote a man dry. By closing the legitimate saloon all you can do is to change the channel through which the man is to receive his supply. Where the customer bought in five and ten cent quantities you compel him to buy the quart, case or barrel. The man, who under regulation is a beer drinker, frequently under prohibition becomes a whiskey drinker. This is a poor way to promote temperance. We oppose prohibition because as a temperance measure it is a farce, a failure.

Prohibitionists masquerading under the name "Brainerd Law Enforcement League," tell you that the abolition of saloons will abolish drunkenness. Maine has had prohibition for sixty years and the records show that in Portland and Bangor they had in 1914 one arrest for drunkenness to every 15 of population. Milwaukee had one arrest for every 120 of population.

Drys want us to show them "one valid reason for the existence of a saloon." Every man who wants a drink is a valid reason. He should be permitted to secure his supply in a legal way from an open saloon, instead of forcing him to patronize the bootlegger.

A Mother's Secret of Success. The well known proverb "Example is better than precept" is only another form of expressing the predominating power of sympathy, for example can have little influence except in so far as a sympathetic feeling in the observer leads him to imitate it. So that "Example is better than precept" means only that sympathy has more influence in the human heart than reasoning.

This principle, so powerful at every period of life, is at its maximum in childhood. The child's thoughts and feelings are spontaneously drawn into harmony with the thoughts and feelings of those around him whom he loves, and this leads naturally to imitation, or reproduction, of their actions.

The great secret of success for a mother in the formation of the character of her children is to make them respect and love her and then simply to be herself what she wishes them to be. Abbott says that to make them respect and love her is to control them by a firm government where control is required and to indulge them almost without limit where indulgence will do no harm. This is true, but we often forget the latter half and wonder at our failures.

Hardening Boys' Shoes.

"If you rub hardening oil into boys' shoes when you buy them," says a mother. "It makes them last twice as long, and renders them absolutely waterproof." You can make this hardening oil yourself. Put half an ounce of beeswax and half a pint of boiled linseed oil in a jar. Heat it over the stove till the wax dissolves. Let it cool, then stir up and apply to the soles of the boots with a brush. Put the boots on trees till the next morning, when they will be quite dry and ready to wear.

Woman's World

How a Great Dancer Teaches and Mothers "Her Children."

ANNA PAVLOVA.

Pavlova dances. Surrounded by chattering coryphees, hand on hip, head to one side in a pose of anticipation, she works out a terpsichorean problem. She has succeeded. The group parts, and she steps forth, leading a tall girl in shimmering blue classic dress. Pavlova reiterates the steps, the music breathing soft accompaniment. The girl imitates. Over and over the steps they work, Pavlova snapping her slender fingers, tossing her head, forcing into the figure the spirit which makes great dancing. And when the coryphees succeeds an approving pat on the shoulder rewards the radiant girl.

In rehearsal when the music is a bit uncertain, when the lights are blatant, when the vast orchestra and the vigner balconies beyond are chilling in the unresponsive mustiness, the joy of Pavlova's dancing is as apparent as when she dances to crowded auditoriums. She colors the ballet, the director and the strangely gentle conductor of the orchestra. The final twirl is not coincident with the final chord. She steps out of the musical picture and shakes her head at the conductor. "Last four bars," orders Mr. Theodore Stier, and again the final twirl, still out of beat. Over and over she does that difficult twirl, the ballet does its intricate tableau and the orchestra its tempestuous finale. All watch her. She snaps her fingers. "One, two, three, four," marks time with her arms and smiles because it is art to achieve the difficult.

"She is the hardest working woman in the world," her agents, her directors and the rest of her adorers declare fervently. And to watch her and talk with her during an hour confirms the extravagant statement.

Far more than merely the director and teacher of these girls, she is their mother, speaking of them as "my children." They live with her. She sees to it that their other studies are not neglected. She watches them; will not allow them to go to parties or go out at night. Their street clothes are as quiet and unexaggerated as her own are. Never do they wear silk stockings on the street, for, besides being very bad for the feet, they are extravagant, and children must be taught not to be improvident.

And most important is their work. But that she teaches them less by word than by example, for they cannot fail to imitate the ardor with which she pursues her art all day and every day, to the exclusion of every other pleasure.

To Keep Silver Bright.

An easy way to keep silver bright is to put a handful of borax in a dishpan of hot water with a very little soap. Put the silver in this and let it stand the entire morning. Then rinse in clear water and wipe thoroughly dry with a soft cloth.

You can treat plated ware in the same manner without the slightest injury to the plate.

ACCUSED OF KILLING THREE

Negro Is Arrested at St. Louis for Illinois Murders.

St. Louis, March 22.—St. Louis police officials indicated the arrest here of Lovey Mitchell, a negro, would result in reopening investigations of thirty murders, committed since 1911, identical in nearly every detail. The crimes were committed at night while the victims lay asleep, and all came to their death by means of blows from an ax.

The warrant on which Mitchell was arrested charges him with the murder of William E. Dawson, a sexton, his wife and daughter, Georgia, thirteen years old, at Monmouth, Ill., on the night of Sept. 30, 1911.

Mitchell denies all knowledge of the crime and waived extradition. He was taken to Monmouth.

Words To The Wise

[No. 1]

This communication is an appeal to your common sense, to reason and justice.

Wise people think, and those who think cannot be deceived.

In this contest, as it proceeds we expect to depend upon truth for our success. Personalities shall be avoided.

Our fight is no against men, but against principles which we believe to be fundamentally wrong.

You have been asked, and will be continually urged, to vote for prohibition. Arguments against the abuse of liquor will be made and the people will be urged to apply these arguments to the right to use intoxicants.

This is unsound, unfair and unreasonable.

If you can apply the argument against excess to the right to use a thing in moderation you can abolish all good because some people abuse everything good in the world.

As this contest proceeds it will be observed that the dries want to be known as the "temperance people," "temperance workers," etc. They attempt to appropriate to themselves for very exclusive use the beautiful word "temperance" which applies not only to the moderate use of alcoholic beverages, but to all good things.

Temperance is the remedy for intemperance. Total abstinence is also a remedy for intemperance, but before either can be a virtue it must be self-imposed and self-enforced. Before law can become a remedy for intemperance it must be enforced against the user, not the seller. You can vote a town dry, but you cannot vote a man dry. By closing the legitimate saloon all you can do is to change the channel through which the man is to receive his supply. Where the customer bought in five and ten cent quantities you compel him to buy the quart, case or barrel. The man, who under regulation is a beer drinker, frequently under prohibition becomes a whiskey drinker. This is a poor way to promote temperance. We oppose prohibition because as a temperance measure it is a farce, a failure.

Prohibitionists masquerading under the name "Brainerd Law Enforcement League," tell you that the abolition of saloons will abolish drunkenness. Maine has had prohibition for sixty years and the records show that in Portland and Bangor they had in 1914 one arrest for drunkenness to every 15 of population. Milwaukee had one arrest for every 120 of population.

Dries want us to show them "one valid reason for the existence of a saloon." Every man who wants a drink is a valid reason. He should be permitted to secure his supply in a legal way from an open saloon, instead of forcing him to patronize the bootlegger.

THE NEW CHARTER

Edited by the members of the Charter Commission favorable to new charter.

OUR PREAMBLE

"No form of government can in and of itself produce good results. The most that any plan can do is to provide an organization which LENDS itself to EFFICIENT action, and which at the same time places in the hands of the electorate some simple and effective means for controlling their government in their own interests. Beyond that results can only be obtained thru an enlightened public opinion."

The Features of the New Charter in a Nut Shell

1. A council for purely legislative work, elected for a two year period. Consists of either 5 or 7 men.
2. Councilmen are nominated by petition and run on a non-partisan ticket.
3. Preferential voting (1st, 2nd and 3rd choice.)
4. Council meets regularly once a month. They have no committee work.
5. Initiative, referendum and recall provided for.
6. All bonds are eliminated except the library board.
7. Civil service commission, appointed by the council.
8. Specific and stringent provisions are made regarding contracts and franchises.
9. Office of mayor, assessor and treasurer are no longer elective.
10. Council appoints a competent official to carry out the decisions by the council. This official is known as the Mayor (or Manager). Mayor does not vote nor has he a veto power. His duties are purely administrative. The council also discharges him.
11. A City Clerk, a City Engineer and an Assessor are appointed by the Mayor who do work similar to that of those officials at present. The City Clerk is clerk of council and of municipal court and keeps account of all the finances. The engineer also assumes the duties of building inspector and street commissioner. The assessor's duties are as heretofore.
12. The Mayor is in charge of public utilities, police, fire, health, and purchasing departments, and all

I'll Tell You This, Too, My Daughter

WILL undoubtedly be like your father and all other normal men—he probably will want a mild stimulant occasionally. Don't start your married life by being prudish. Beer is healthful and refreshing, and he will drink it moderately, for he knows the meaning of True Temperance. Don't tell him he can't drink it—he broad-minded and meet him half way. You'll have your ice cream soda frequently and Will will have his beer.

Your father and I soon will have our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. In all those years he has drunk his beer whenever he wanted it. Look at him today—strong, robust, alert, no finer man on earth. Never once have I denied him the privilege of drinking moderately. I know the moderation with which he drinks does him a world of good. In fact, I enjoy seeing him safeguard his health. It's when you seek to deprive a man of his liberty that he rebels. Let Will drink beer when he wants it, for he's too good a man to go beyond the bounds of moderation. You'll find that a little beer will increase his stock of cheerfulness. Choose the home of mirth and happiness, my dear, rather than the house of trouble and dissension.

Way Vote For the Charter

The Charter Commission presents the city manager plan of municipal government for the following reasons:

It Eliminates Politics

The curse of municipal government has been politics. Each councilman in filing for the nomination swears that he is not supported by any political party or association.

It Provides for Economy in City Management

The present plan is wasteful. Many men give a little time. The new plan provides that one trained man gives all his time under the direction of the council. This will cost the city no more for administration, but will make for economy in that the work will be better done and thus effect a great saving.

It Makes For Efficiency

Trained men can and do manage a city better than men who are selected by popular vote. They are not good vote getters. Wherever this plan has been tried it has been more successful than expected. It is hard business methods applied to municipal affairs.

Less Chances For Graft

Our city is upon the eve of a big growth. Before we find our city in clutches of grafters, as is the case with larger cities, let us provide for more direct methods of control.

Centralizes Responsibility

If a man does good work it will be known who does it and he will get the credit. If he seeks to shirk and fails to enforce the ordinances as he finds them he cannot say that it is the other fellow. Every councilman and the business manager will always be in the line of fire. Under the present form of government responsibility is so scattered that it is easily shifted and the people in their discouragement curse the whole system in general. This feature alone should win every vote.

It Incorporates the Initiative

If the people want legislation which the council refuses to give them they may secure it through the initiative. The council must pass or submit any ordinance if twenty per cent of the voters petition for it.

It Incorporates the Referendum

Should the council pass an ordinance not pleasing to the voters the council must submit it to a referendum if ten per cent of the voters petition for it.

It Provides for the Recall

Should any or all of the council prove unsatisfactory they may be recalled upon a petition of twenty-five per cent of the voters. Should the Manager not make good and should the council sustain him—a most improbable situation—the council must discharge him or submit to a recall. The council will have an unenviable record if the Manager does not make good, and since they control him and are subject to recall there is little danger of their not checking him up. His success or failure is their success or failure.

It Provides for Civil Service

The present employees will be retained in so far as they are needed but all new employees must pass a civil service examination. This will insure competent employees.

It Is Conservative

It provides a conservative business policy for the government of the city instead of the radical method of giving the city's business into the hands of politicians.

Secures Competent Councilmen

Since there is an opportunity for a man to work and accomplish something, the most competent men in the city will run for office.

It Employs Business Methods

Under the new Charter the council must prepare a budget just as every successful business concern does. The council makes its assessment upon this budget and cannot spend the funds for other than the purpose for which it is assessed. One reason for the failure of our present plan is the lack of methods. The new charter provides for them. The methods in vogue under the present charter would break any business if it followed them.

Better Police Service

The police will not have any debts to pay to any political party and will be controlled by a Manager who must make good or answer to the council why. The police will work on merit not on political pull. The chief of police will not be a democrat, a republican or a socialist according to the politics of the mayor but will be one who has merit enough to hold his position, and if he is competent will not be fired with every municipal election. Wouldn't that be refreshing?

It Safeguards Franchises

Should the city wish to give a franchise, that franchise will be better safeguarded under the new charter.

It Provides for Municipal Ownership
The charter provides that the city may own any utility, and gives the city extraordinary power for owning

and operating coal yards, ice plants or other things which, if occasion arises, may seem to be expedient.

Not a Panacea For All

Municipal ills, but the new charter makes it possible for the people to have the best possible municipal government if they want it. There are other splendid features. Read the Charter and note them.

Business-Like Administration Provided

The city is akin to a big business corporation, and its affairs should be managed just as carefully, and intelligently, and according to much the same method, as those of a private corporation, in the interests of its stockholders who are the inhabitants and taxpayers.

Under the present system of administration, the entire business of the city, aside from mere clerical duties, is conducted by a mayor and council, and certain appointive boards such as the water and light board, the park board, the sinking fund commission, and others. Not a single one of these officials is expected to have had any special training for this work, and every one of them is engaged in a private business on which he is dependent for a livelihood, and hence he necessarily devotes to the city's interests only such time and thought as can be spared from such business. Is there any private corporation which could long survive if it were managed in that way? Is there any one who does not believe that the city would be better managed, and her financial condition improved, if the methods of private corporation management could be applied to her government? This is exactly what is proposed to be done under the new charter.

The council is to be retained to serve the purpose of a board of directors, but their functions are limited to the making of proper laws and rules of government, and to the selection of skilled officers to manage the business in conformity with these laws. All the details of the business are to be handled by a single capable man, who will be hired from any part of the country, who will be required to devote his entire time and thought to the work, and who will be paid a salary large enough to make it an object for him to do so. If he does not come up to the expectations of his employers, or fails to make good, he may be discharged at any time. Since the members of the council will be held directly responsible to the people for the character of the manager whom they employ, and for the results which he accomplishes, they may reasonably be expected to cut out politics and base their selection on merit alone. The experience of most of the cities where the plan has been tried has been that the manager has not been selected from among the residents of the city but has been chosen from among a number of outside applicants, because of his showing as to experience and ability. And he has made good. *

Hard to Kill Cities.

The teaching of history is that a city is hard to kill. For instance, London has been decimated five times by plagues, in addition to visitations of typhus, cholera and other epidemics. She has been burned more or less severely several times. Paris has gone through eight sieges, ten famines, two plagues and one fire which devastated it. Rome has been swept by pestilence no fewer than ten times. She has been twice burned and six times driven to submission by starvation. Constantinople has been burned out nine times and has suffered from four plagues and five sieges.—London Spectator.

Zinc Ointment For Red Nose.

A red nose is often constitutional, or the sign of indigestion, but more often than not it is caused by a too thin skin. When the latter is the cause zinc ointment is a splendid remedy. You should apply it to the nose every night. You will find it does wonders in hardening the skin, and in this way the tendency to redness will gradually disappear.

LIKE CAVE MEN

By Phil Rader

Phil D. Rader.

Copyright 1915 by United Press

London: How does it feel to live in the trenches? Here's a little recipe by which you may find out. Take a cold damp cellar, flood it with some three to six inches of almost ice cold mud. At a height of five feet from the floor stretch a tangle of wires, turn an electric current into the wires and let the voltage be so heavy that every wire will be so deadly as a third rail. Now blow out the light, crawl to the middle of the floor and in the darkness stand erect, trusting to blind luck that your head won't touch the wires.

These charged wires in the darkness reveal the invisibly, deadly trails of the bullets that fly over your head in the darkness. Of course, if you want to be safe in the cellar, you can keep your head down, but if you did that in the trenches, you would be neglecting your duty. It is your duty, for instance, to fire eight bullets an hour, while on guard. Watchful eyes of officers will tell whether you are shooting into the air or whether you are firing with your eyes fixed on the enemy's trenches and a good sentinel is supposed to raise his head above the trenches every ten minutes to see what is going on.

Victor Chapman, a Harvard graduate, who was with me in the trenches, was somewhat of a philosopher and he used to say: "The danger of being shot is very small. The trail of a bullet is very small, the space around you, as compared with the trail of a bullet is 1,000,000 to one, so the chances of being hit are in the same proportion."

But it did not work with Chapman at all. He was hit the very first day in the arm.

The trenches are underground cities filled with unspeakably dirty citizens. They are in a tangle of sunken streets, the houses are holes in the earth and the streets of my district converged in one place where the Americans called "Long Acre Square" a very exclusive triangle where all officers lived.

There are street signs, too, telling how to reach this or that officer's hole in the ground and now and then there are danger signs warning the passerby to keep his head low. It was a two-mile journey through the trenches from our front to the rear trench and on this journey one would meet and pass many men. The soldiers always speak to each other at these meetings, just the same as two men pass the time of day on a country road. The lieutenant is practically the mayor of this underground city, the sergeants might be likened to policemen.

There is trading underway, too. Tobacco is the medium and the storekeeper is a chap who at a certain time may have more of something he does not want and less of something he does.

Do you want to go to a music hall? There's to be a certain dugout in the trenches where the musical men gather. There was in the trenches Geo. Ullard, a negro from Galveston, Texas, who played wonderfully on a banjo every night. The German trench was only 45 feet away from us at this point and they used to listen to us every evening and cheer us.

There are many little tasks with which the citizens of trench town busy themselves. You'll see a man fixing his rifle, another will be re-flooring his hut with straw, another will be rigging a bottle on a stick for the Germans to shoot at, two or three may be preparing a lay figure for a German target. Another may be marking his initials in the sides of the trenches by striking his empty cartridge shells into the earth. There are artists, too, in this strange colony. Almost daily there was a wooden tombstone or two to prepare, it was my duty to decorate the tomb stones with some sort of design, and a Belgian named Durmino always did the lettering. You might find us any forenoon working with a red hot poker, burning names and decorations on a wooden cross, which we had constructed out of many pieces of wood

we could find. There are three Americans in my machine squad of sixteen men—Eugene Jacobs, who still owns a butcher shop at Pawtucket, R. I.; Victor Chapman of New York, and myself, and on Thanksgiving we arranged a feast in our hut. Jose Ames, an Argentinian, heard that he had picked up some stray chickens and had shot a goose and he invited himself, saying, "I know what Thanksgiving is. I'm a South American so I think I ought to come."

The other 12 men in the squad did not know what Thanksgiving day was but they knew chickens when they smelled them, so we invited them all. The chicken was served out of a magnificent old China bowl, which we found in the deserted house of the mayor of a nearby town. Chapman, who knows antiques when he sees them, said the bowl was at least three hundred years old and he was going to take it home when he left the trenches, but one day we permitted five countrymen of a newly arrived company to sleep in our hole, a shell struck the roof, broke the bowl and killed three men. The bowl was buried in the cavein and we dug a new hole.

London: The most picturesque and weird hours of all the life in the trenches is the time between sunset and the fall of darkness.

If the real pictures were put on the stage it would not be believed. As you see it and watch it yourself, you feel that your eyes and mind are deceiving you. As the sun sinks and glows, and the shadows grow longer, the gulch of the trenches fill with early night. It begins to grow cold and the frost crystals form on the muddy side of the trenches, giving the effect of tinsel or bits of bright stones. The darkness of the trenches is broken now and then by the flare of a cigarette, puffed nervously, or by the flare of a rifle.

Silhouetted against the red sky is the figure of a legion soldier his glistening bayonet protruding above the trench walls and catching the dying glare of the sunlight. Further along are ugly shadows of the machine guns, brightened by the polished brass work.

As the darkness grows deeper you catch a glimpse of a sharp pin point, of light, on a distant hill, which flickers in the shadow, a signal of a battery to its comrades a mile distant. They are thinking some new plot to kill human beings. There is a rattle of rifle and then quick flashes, first at one point of your trench and then at another. From away off comes the putt, putt, of a Maxim gun. Nightfall is the machine gun's hour. During the hours of daylight, the machine gun men have got their ranges and fixed their aims and now in the darkness, when their precious guns are safest from sharpshooters, they flare out the result of the day's work.

From distant corners of the compass comes the rear of deep-throated batteries.

The stars seem all the brighter, because you are gazing at them from the bottom of your trench. Suddenly the sky is bisected by an arc of sparks, terminated by a beautiful glare of pure white light, which transforms night into day for the space of many seconds. It is a night light sent up by the enemy so that they can see what they are doing; we might possibly, they think, be out of our trenches, with our bayonets fixed charging on them through the darkness. After the white light (Continued on page 6)

THE NEW CHARTER

Edited by the members of the Charter Commission favorable to new charter.

OUR PREAMBLE

"No form of government can in and of itself produce good results. The most that any plan can do is to provide an organization which LENDS itself to EFFICIENT action, and which at the same time places in the hands of the electorate some simple and effective means for controlling their government in their own interests. Beyond that results can only be obtained thru an enlightened public opinion."

The Features of the New Charter in a Nut Shell

1. A council for purely legislative work, elected for a two year period. Consists of either 5 or 7 men.
2. Councilmen are nominated by petition and run on a non-partisan ticket.
3. Preferential voting (1st, 2nd and 3rd choice.)
4. Council meets regularly once a month. They have no committee work.
5. Initiative, referendum and recall provided for.
6. All bonds are eliminated except the library board.
7. Civil service commission, appointed by the council.
8. Specific and stringent provisions are made regarding contracts and franchises.
9. Office of mayor, assessor and treasurer are no longer elective.
10. Council appoints a competent official to carry out the decisions by the council. This official is known as the Mayor (or Manager). Mayor does not vote nor has he a veto power. His duties are purely administrative. The council also discharges him.
11. A City Clerk, a City Engineer and an Assessor are appointed by the Mayor who do work similar to that of those officials at present. The City Clerk is clerk of council and of municipal court and keeps account of all the finances. The engineer also assumes the duties of building inspector and street commissioner. The assessor's duties are as heretofore.
12. The Mayor is in charge of public utilities, police, fire, health, and purchasing departments, and all

I'll Tell You This, Too, My Daughter

WILL undoubtedly be like your father and all other normal men—he probably will want a mild stimulant occasionally.

Don't start your married life by being prudish. Beer is healthful and refreshing, and he will drink it moderately, for he knows the meaning of True Temperance. Don't tell him he can't drink it—he's broad-minded and meet him half way. You'll have your ice cream soda frequently and Will will have his beer.

Your father and I soon will have our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. In all those years he has drunk his beer whenever he wanted it. Look at him today—strong, robust, alert, no finer man on earth. Never once have I denied him the privilege of drinking moderately. I know the moderation with which he drinks does him a world of good. In fact, I enjoy seeing him safeguard his health.

It's when you seek to deprive a man of his liberty that he rebels. Let Will drink beer when he wants it, for he's too good a man to go beyond the bounds of moderation. You'll find that a little beer will increase his stock of cheerfulness. Choose the home of mirth and happiness, my dear, rather than the house of trouble and dissension.

employees are under his directions, governed by civil service rules.

Why Vote For the Charter

The Charter Commission presents the city manager plan of municipal government for the following reasons:

It Eliminates Politics

The curse of municipal government has been politics. Each councilman in filing for the nomination swears that he is not supported by any political party or association.

It Provides for Economy in City Management

The present plan is wasteful. Many men give a little time. The new plan provides that one trained man gives all his time under the direction of the council. This will cost the city no more for administration, but will make for economy in that the work will be better done and thus effect a great saving.

It Makes For Efficiency

Trained men can and do manage a city better than men who are selected by popular vote. They are not good vote getters. Wherever this plan has been tried it has been more successful than expected. It is hard business methods applied to municipal affairs.

Less Chances For Graft

Our city is upon the eve of a big growth. Before we find our city in clutches of grafters, as is the case with larger cities, let us provide for more direct methods of control.

Centralizes Responsibility

If a man does good work it will be known who does it and he will get the credit. If he seeks to shirk and fails to enforce the ordinances as he finds them he cannot say that it is the other fellow. Every councilman and the business manager will always be in the lime light. Under the present form of government responsibility is so scattered that it is easily shifted and the people in their discouragement curse the whole system in general. This feature alone should win every vote.

It Incorporates the Initiative

If the people want legislation which the council refuses to give them they may secure it through the initiative. The council must pass or submit any ordinances if twenty per cent of the voters petition for it.

It Incorporates the Referendum

Should the council pass an ordinance not pleasing to the voters the council must submit it to a referendum if ten per cent of the voters petition for it.

It Provides for the Recall

Should any or all of the council prove unsatisfactory they may be recalled upon a petition of twenty-five per cent of the voters. Should the Manager not make good and should the council sustain him—a most improbable situation—the council must discharge him or submit to a recall. The council will have an unenviable record if the Manager does not make good, and since they control him and are subject to recall there is little danger of their not checking him up. His success or failure is their success or failure.

It Provides for Civil Service

The present employees will be retained in so far as they are needed but all new employees must pass a civil service examination. This will insure competent employees.

It is Conservative

It provides a conservative business policy for the government of the city instead of the radical method of giving the city's business into the hands of politicians.

Secures Competent Councilmen

Since there is an opportunity for a man to work and accomplish something, the most competent men in the city will run for office.

It Employs Business Methods

Under the new Charter the council must prepare a budget just as every successful business concern does. The council makes its assessment upon this budget and cannot spend the funds for other than the purpose for which it is assessed. One reason for the failure of our present plan is the lack of methods. The new charter provides for them. The methods in vogue under the present charter would break any business if it followed them.

Better Police Service

The police will not have any debts to pay to any political party and will be controlled by a Manager who must make good or answer to the council why. The police will work on merit not on political pull. The chief of police will not be a democrat, a republican or a socialist according to the politics of the mayor but will be one who has merit enough to hold his position, and if he is competent will not be fired with every municipal election. Wouldn't that be refreshing?

It Safeguards Franchises

Should the city wish to give a franchise, that franchise will be better safeguarded under the new charter.

It Provides for Municipal Ownership

The charter provides that the city may own any utility, and gives the city extraordinary power for owning

and operating coal yards, ice plants or other things which, if occasion arises, may seem to be expedient.

Not a Panacea For All

Municipal ills, but the new charter makes it possible for the people to have the best possible municipal government if they want it. There are other splendid features. Read the Charter and note them.

Business-Like Administration Provided

The city is akin to a big business corporation, and its affairs should be managed just as carefully, and intelligently, and according to much the same method, as those of a private corporation, in the interests of its stockholders who are the inhabitants and taxpayers.

Under the present system of administration, the entire business of the city, aside from mere clerical duties, is conducted by a mayor and council, and certain appointive boards such as the water and light board, the park board, the sinking fund commission, and others. Not a single one of these officials is expected to have had any special training for this work, and every one of them is engaged in a private business on which he is dependent for a livelihood, and hence he necessarily devotes to the city's interests only such time and thought as can be spared from such business. Is there any private corporation which could long survive if it were managed in that way? Is there any one who does not believe that the city would be better managed, and her financial condition improved, if the methods of private corporation management could be applied to her government? This is exactly what is proposed to be done under the new charter.

The council is to be retained to serve the purpose of a board of directors, but their functions are limited to the making of proper laws and rules of government, and to the selection of skilled officers to manage the business in conformity with these laws. All the details of the business are to be handled by a single capable man, who will be hired from any part of the country, who will be required to devote his entire time and thought to the work, and who will be paid a salary large enough to make it an object for him to do so. If he does not come up to the expectations of his employers, or fails to make good, he may be discharged at any time. Since the members of the council will be held directly responsible to the people for the character of the manager whom they employ, and for the results, which he accomplishes, they may reasonably be expected to cut out politics and base their selection on merit alone. The experience of most of the cities where the plan has been tried has been that the manager has not been selected from among the residents of the city but has been chosen from among a number of outside applicants, because of his showing as to experience and ability. And he has made good. *

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of this medicine that they offer $100 Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. Hard to Kill Cities.

The teaching of history is that a city is hard to kill. For instance, London has been decimated five times by plagues, in addition to visitations of typhus, cholera and other epidemics. She has been burned more or less severely several times. Paris has gone through eight sieges, ten famines, two plagues and one fire which devastated it. Rome has been swept by pestilence no fewer than ten times. She has been twice burned and six times driven to submission by starvation. Constantinople has been burned out nine times and has suffered from four plagues and five sieges.—London Spectator.

Zinc Ointment For Red Nose.

A red nose is often constitutional, or the sign of indigestion, but more often than not it is caused by a too thin skin. When the latter is the cause zinc ointment is a splendid remedy. You should apply it to the nose every night. You will find it does wonders in hardening the skin, and in this way the tendency to redness will gradually disappear.

COURTESY.

Know, dear brother, that courtesy is one of the qualities of God himself, who of his courtesy giveth his sun and his rain to the just and unjust, and courtesy is the sister of charity, the which queneth hate and keepeth love alive.—Etching—ham Letters.

LIKE CAVE MEN

London: How does it feel to live in the trenches. Here's a little recipe by which you may find out. Take a cold damp cellar, flood it with some three to six inches of almost ice cold mud. At a height of five feet from the floor stretch a tangle of wires, turn an electric current into the wires and let the voltage be so heavy that every wire will be so deadly as a third rail. Now blow out the light, crawl to the middle of the floor and in the darkness stand erect, trusting to blind luck that your head won't touch the wires.

These charged wires in the darkness reveal the invisibly, deadly traits of the bullets that fly over your head in the darkness. Of course, if you want to be safe in the cellar, you can keep your head down, but if you did that in the trenches, you would be neglecting your duty. It is your duty, for instance, to fire eight bullets an hour, while on guard. Watchful eyes of officers will tell whether you are shooting into the air or whether you are firing with your eyes fixed on the enemy's trenches and a good sentinel is supposed to raise his head above the trenches every ten minutes to see what is going on.

Victor Chapman, a Harvard graduate, who was with me in the trenches, was somewhat of a philosopher and he used to say: "The danger of being shot is very small. The trail of a bullet is very small, the space around you, as compared with the trail of a bullet is 1,000,000 to one, so the chances of being hit are in the same proportion."

But it did not work with Chapman at all. He was hit the very first day in the trench.

The trenches are underground cities filled with unspeakably dirty citizens. They are in a tangle of sunken streets, the houses are holes in the earth and the streets of my district converged in one place which the Americans called "Long Ace Square" a very exclusive triangle where all officers lived.

There are street signs, too, telling how to reach this or that officer's hole in the ground and now and then there are danger signs warning the passerby to keep his head low. It was a two-mile journey through the trenches from our front to the rear trench and on this journey one would meet and pass many men. The soldiers always speak to each other at these meetings, just the same as two men pass the time of day on a country road. The lieutenant is practically the mayor of this underground city, the sergeants might be likened to policemen.

There is trading underway, too. Tobacco is the medium and the store-keeper is a chap who at a certain time may have more of something he does not want and less of something he does.

Do you want to go to a music hall? There's to be a certain dugout in the trenches where the musical men gather. There was in the trenches Geo. Ullard, a negro from Galveston, Texas, who played wonderfully on a banjo every night. The German trench was only 45 feet away from us at this point and they used to listen to us every evening and cheer us.

There are many little tasks with which the citizens of trench town busy themselves. You'll see a man fixing his rifle, another will be re-flooring his hut with straw, another will be rigging a bottle on a stick for the Germans to shoot at, two or three may be preparing a lay figure for a German target. Another may be marking his initials in the sides of the trenches by striking his empty cartridge shells into the earth. There are artists, too. In this strange colony. Almost daily there was a wooden tombstone or two to prepare. It was my duty to decorate the tomb stones with some sort of design, and a Belgian named Durmino always did the lettering. You might find any foreman working with a red hot poker, burning names and decorations on a wooden cross, which we had constructed out of many pieces of wood

we could find. There are three Americans in my machine squad of sixteen men—Eugene Jacobs, who still owns a butcher shop at Pawtucket, R. I.; Victor Chapman of New York, and myself, and on Thanksgiving we arranged a feast in our hut. Jose Ames, an Argentinian, heard that he had picked up some stray chickens and had shot a goose and he invited himself, saying, "I know what Thanksgiving is. I'm a South American so I think I ought to come."

The other 12 men in the squad did not know what Thanksgiving day was but they knew chickens when they smelled them, so we invited them all. The chicken was served out of a magnificent old China bowl, which we found in the deserted house of the mayor of a nearby town. Chapman, who knows antiques when he sees them, said the bowl was at least three hundred years old and he was going to take it home when he left the trenches, but one day we permitted five countrymen of a newly arrived company to sleep in our hole, a shell struck the roof, broke the bowl and killed three men. The bowl was buried in the cavein and we dug a new hole.

London: The most picturesque and weird hours of all the life in the trenches is the time between sunset and the fall of darkness.

If the real pictures were put on the stage it would not be believed. As you see it and watch it yourself, you feel that your eyes and mind are deceiving you. As the sun sinks and glows, and the shadows grow longer, the gulch of the trenches fill with early night. It begins to grow cold and the frost crystals form on the muddy side of the trenches, giving the effect of tinsel or bits of bright stones. The darkness of the trenches is broken now and then by the flare of a cigarette, puffed nervously, or by the flare of a rifle.

Silhouetted against the red sky is the figure of a legion soldier his glistening bayonet protruding above the trench walls and catching the dying glare of the sunlight. Further along are ugly shadows of the machine guns, brightened by the polished brass work.

As the darkness grows deeper you catch a glimpse of a sharp pin point, of light, on a distant hill, which flickers in the shadow, a signal of a battery to its comrades a mile distant. They are thinking some new plot to kill human beings. There is a rattle of rifle and then quick flashes, first at one point of your trench and then at another. From away off comes the putt, putt, of a Maxim gun. Nightfall is the machine gun's hour. During the hours of daylight, the machine gun men have got their ranges and fixed their aims and now in the darkness, when their precious guns are safest from sharpshooters, they flare out the result of the day's work.

From distant corners of the compass comes the rear of deep-throated batteries.

The stars seem all the brighter, because you are gazing at them from the bottom of your trench. Suddenly the sky is bisected by an arc of sparks, terminated by a beautiful glare of pure white light, which transforms night into day for the space of many seconds. It is a night light sent up by the enemy so that they can see what they are doing; we might possibly, they think, be out of our trenches, with our bayonets fixed charging on them through the darkness. After the white light (Continued on page 6)

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BOBS UP AGAIN

(By United Press)

St. Paul, March 22—A new woman's suffrage bill is ready for introduction today, and will be started in both houses. It gives women the right to vote for presidential electors, but no other officers. Representative Larson is author of the bill, while Senator Sageng will look after the interest in that body.

The Minnesota investment board this afternoon approved a loan of $60,000 from state funds to take up floating indebtedness of Clearwater county.

No action has been taken on the efficiency and economy bill up to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The governor was given the Vermilyea bill, repealing the Elwell road law this afternoon, but he declined to discuss or comment on his attitude toward the measure. Dozens of letters and telegrams have reached him urging him not to sign the bill.

Communication from Detroit

Editors Dispatch:
In the communication you published from Mr. M. J. Reilly he stated that he was "stringing" his friend when he told him about conditions in Detroit, Minn. He did not deny his interview but he inferred that conditions were not just as attributed to him. Kindly give space to the following letter which speaks for itself.

BRAINERD LAW ENFORCEMENT LEAGUE.

Detroit, Minn., March 20, 1915.
Brainerd Law Enforcement League:
Dear Sirs:

Yours of March 19th together with newspaper clippings received and as a result of your letter I have been investigating some of the conditions that obtain here. Detroit went dry on November 30th, 1914 and the marshal informed me this morning that there had not been a single arrest for drunkenness or disorderly conduct in Detroit since November 30th. The city has no prisoners in jail and has had none.

Personally, I wish to state that I have seen but one drunk person in Detroit since Nov. 30th, and he got off of the Soo train in that condition. It is also true that from Jan. 8th to Feb. 22, we only had one policeman and he had little to do.

Now in regard to business, the managers of one of our department stores tell me that business is normal while the manager of the other states that it's a fine thing for them. That people buy things now that they could not buy formerly for they had no money. The president of the largest lumber company here made the statement to me, that no license was helping their business greatly. Plans are drawn and I understand that some of the contracts have been let for the erection of four up-to-date business blocks to replace the ones destroyed by fire last August and so far as the city is concerned, a new city hall has been voted to replace the destroyed one and we are planning to pave Washington Avenue this summer. Since the town went dry the Water and Light commission has reduced the price of electricity and will also extend the water mains this summer. Another thing, if any one thinks that prohibition has hurt the values just let him try to rent a house here. They are all full. Let him try to buy and he'll find that real estate is higher than ever. Perhaps our taxes will be higher. I own my home and I've had people pay their bills recently that in my opinion never would have paid them if we still had saloons. I've collected enough in that way to a great deal more than pay my extra tax.

Now gentlemen, the things I have written are the result of personal inquiry made today and it is not hearsay. You can bank on it, I can show the goods if need arise.

Yours,
DR. L. V. LONG.

HIGHWAY HOME RULE

Editor Dispatch:—

I have read with interest the resolutions of Oak Lawn and Deerwood towns declaring for highway home rule, and for organization of such clubs through the county and state. Fundamentally, though not in their fullness, they express my sentiments and principles in regard to this subject.

As I see things, human progress and development is the end or purpose, in the economy of an All-wise Providence, of all the infinite provision and arrangement of created matter, and of the laws by which it is governed. Material progress is only the evidence or expression of certain phases of intellectual and moral development of those who have contributed thereto, either in planning, promoting, supporting, or managing, but never that of the mere laborer, slave or machines of production.

Believing this I have long looked on the necessities and obstacles in the present stage of pioneer life in northern Minnesota and the individual responsibilities necessarily a part of it as the greatest opportunity in the present generation for the development of such a strong and sturdy, free, intelligent, skillful and self-governing generation of men and women as would be becoming to a state so richly endowed by nature, and undoubtedly destined to be a leader in the van of human progress.

But how have the settlers in general accepted such opportunity and such responsibility? With individual exceptions here and there the large majority have endeavored to shirk, to evade such responsibilities; instead of appreciating the value of their opportunity and of the unusual variety of resources adapted to the support of life they have sought after money as the one good, their main dependence for life, and that which might have afforded them not only life but freedom has been too much neglected, even despised. In the matter of public improvements as roads, bridges, schools, etc., their cry has been for money, money. Every town, board has seemed to try to rival every other; one in demanding county money and when the state stepped in offering money they have been fairly tumbling over one another to get state money regardless of the ultimate cost.

Whatever the masses of the people have thought, or however they have understood this state aid, and state appropriations the motive of the leading promoters, is, was, and always has been not simply to desire to furnish the lesser units with money, but it has been essentially to so use or appropriate such money as to acquire a state control of school and road matters to the end that some kind of progress and uniformity might be attained.

As to school money the state had that without the people's voice. For road money we, the people, voted strongly in favor of it three years ago, making it a permanent source of revenue, as a part of the state constitution. Now it sounds as though we didn't like it. What are we going to do about it? Do we want to go back to where we were and let each and every county and town raise its own money and build, or not build their own roads just as they please? This is a free country, we have a right to do as we like (?) Hardly. We have a right to do as we like so long as we live to do right; but when we overstep that line either by demanding or taking more than our right, or failing to do our part in interests of the community, local, state or national, the other fellow's rights come in play.

Is it possible that the leaders in this movement entertain the thought that the state would collect money from all parts and distribute it in special parts gratuitously to counties and towns to do just as they please with it on the strength of the past records? Would that be reasonable? Would it be just to all parts?

The charges of extravagance in expenditure, of squandering in experimentation, and employment of educated theorists in management in place of experienced local men, may be well grounded, but are we right sure that if counties and towns had a thousand dollars to spend where they have had in the past but hundreds that they would use it any better? Wouldn't any one of our friends take infinite more pains to lay a true and enduring foundation for 3000 dollar building, than for a temporary structure, though the latter might give useful service for a time? There are vastly more than one side to our modern problems.

I am a firm believer in local self-government. Without that none of us can be the man or woman pre-

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BOBS UP AGAIN

(By United Press)

St. Paul, March 22—A new woman's suffrage bill is ready for introduction today, and will be started in both houses. It gives women the right to vote for presidential electors, but no other officers. Representative Larson is author of the bill, while Senator Sageng will look after the interest in that body.

The Minnesota investment board this afternoon approved a loan of $60,000 from state funds to take up floating indebtedness of Clearwater county.

No action has been taken on the efficiency and economy bill up to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The governor was given the Vermilyea bill, repealing the Elwell road law this afternoon, but he declined to discuss or comment on his attitude toward the measure. Dozens of letters and telegrams have reached him urging him not to sign the bill.

The council ordered a letter addressed to Supt. W. H. Strachan, of the Lake Superior division, asking that the local freight stop at Deerwood according to schedule.

After the meeting, the ladies of the members surprised their better halves by a grand luncheon to which all the members did full justice. The menu included salads, sandwiches, cake and coffee.

The council now has 50 members and a number of applicants on hand to be initiated at the next meeting.

Woman's Bill up Today

(By United Press)

St. Paul, March 22—The Swanson bill to establish a woman's prison in connection with the Stillwater prison is scheduled for late today.

Communication from Detroit

Editors Dispatch:

In the communication you published from Mr. M. J. Reilly he stated that he was "stringing" his friend when he told him about conditions in Detroit, Minn. He did not deny his interview but he inferred that conditions were not just as attributed to him. Kindly give space to the following letter which speaks for itself.

BRAINERD LAW ENFORCEMENT LEAGUE.

Detroit, Minn., March 20, 1915.
Brainerd Law Enforcement League:
Dear Sirs:

Yours of March 19th together with newspaper clippings received and as a result of your letter I have been investigating some of the conditions that obtain here. Detroit went dry on November 30th, 1914 and the marshal informed me this morning that there had not been a single arrest for drunkenness or disorderly conduct in Detroit since November 30th. The city has no prisoners in jail and has had none.

Personally, I wish to state that I have seen but one drunk person in Detroit since Nov. 30th, and he got off of the Soo train in that condition. It is also true that from Jan. 8th to Feb. 22, we only had one policeman and he had little to do.

Now in regard to business, the managers of one of our department stores tell me that business is normal while the manager of the other states that it is a fine thing for them. That people buy things now that they could not buy formerly for they had no money. The president of the largest lumber company here made the statement to me, that no license was helping their business greatly. Plans are drawn and I understand that some of the contracts have been let for the erection of four up-to-date business blocks to replace the ones destroyed by fire last August and so far as the city is concerned, a new city hall has been voted to replace the destroyed one and we are planning to pave Washington Avenue this summer. Since the town went dry the Water and Light commission has reduced the price of electricity and will also extend the water mains this summer. Another thing, if any one thinks that prohibition has hurt the values just let him try to rent a house here. They are all full. Let him try to buy and he'll find that real estate is higher than ever. Perhaps our taxes will be higher. I own my home and I've had people pay their bills recently that in my opinion never would have paid them if we still had saloons. I've collected enough in that way to a great deal more than pay my extra tax.

Now gentlemen, the things I have written are the result of personal inquiry made today and it is not hearsay. You can bank on it, I can show the goods if need arise.

Yours,
DR. L. V. LONG.

HIGHWAY HOME RULE

Editor Dispatch:

I have read with interest the resolutions of Oak Lawn and Deerwood towns declaring for highway home rule, and for organization of such clubs through the county and state. Fundamentally, though not in their fullness, they express my sentiments and principles in regard to this subject.

As I see things, human progress and development is the end or purpose, in the economy of an All-wise Providence, of all the infinite provision and arrangement of created matter, and of the laws by which it is governed. Material progress is only the evidence or expression of certain phases of intellectual and moral development of those who have contributed thereto, either in planning, promoting, supporting, or managing, but never that of the mere laborer, slave or machines of production.

Believing this I have long looked on the necessities and obstacles in the present stage of pioneer life in northern Minnesota and the individual responsibilities necessarily a part of it as the greatest opportunity in the present generation for the development of such a strong and sturdy, free, intelligent, skillful and self-governing generation of men and women as would be becoming to a state so richly endowed by nature, and undoubtedly destined to be a leader in the van of human progress.

But how have the settlers in general accepted such opportunity and such responsibility? With individual exceptions here and there the large majority have endeavored to shirk, to evade such responsibilities; instead of appreciating the value of their opportunity and of the unusual variety of resources adapted to the support of life they have sought after money as the one good, their main dependence for life, and that which might have afforded them not only life but freedom has been too much neglected, even despised. In the matter of public improvements as roads, bridges, schools, etc., their cry has been for money, money. Every town board has seemed to try to rival every other one in demanding county money and when the state stepped in offering money they have been fairly tumbling over one another to get state money regardless of the ultimate cost.

The Fire Worshipers.

Azerbaijan, a province in northwestern Persia, is the home of the descendants of the Ghebers, the ancient fire worshippers of Persia. The whole countryside is admirably adapted to the propagation of a fire worshiping creed, for earthquakes and caverns vomiting fumes from subterranean conflagrations abound in the neighborhood of Tabriz. One of the most remarkable caverns in the world is that of Scanderbakh, whose character resembles the Grotto del Cane of Naples. It gives off noxious fumes, which at certain times are certain death to man and beast. But the most astonishing place in Azerbaijan is the ruined city of Takht-i-Suleimann, or Solomon's temple. The city stands on a hill 150 feet high, with a wall of thirty feet embracing the crumbling remains of temple and shrine. In the midst is a "lake of deepest azure." Although most of the buildings are of the Mohammedan period, there is one striking mass which has been identified as the temple of the fire worshippers.

should be. But I am equally as strong in the belief in the higher grades, the county, the state and the nation. Each grade has a distinct function and sphere of usefulness contributing to the general welfare.

My solution of the road issue would be to have the state construct and maintain all necessary trunk roads throughout the state, with money raised by the state, and counties and towns the same in their respective jurisdictions.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE MEMEL

Another Force Is Trying to Prevent German Retreat.

Petrograd, March 22.—The capture of Memel by the Russians after an impetuous charge and much street fighting is regarded generally as important because of its moral effect and because it seems to prove that the Germans, when concentrating upon any point, are compelled to leave other portions of their frontier open to penetration. The forces engaged on either side in the Memel operations were not large.

The retreat of the German garrison from Memel is endangered by another Russian column advancing from Tauraggen toward Tilist, which appears likely to cut off the German's progress southward. This Russian column seems to have for its objective a new attempt upon Tilist.

The Cairntorr was a vessel of 2,290 tons and was built in Sunderland in 1904. She was owned by the Cairn line of Newcastle.

DEAD FINGERS.

Curious Conditions That Come With Raynaud's Disease.

Raynaud's disease is a singular affliction in which the circulation in the extremities—in the fingers or toes generally—becomes for a time entirely obstructed. It occurs in persons of nervous temperament, and often follows an exposure to severe cold; it may occur alone, as a purely neurotic symptom, or it may be associated with some other disease, such as epilepsy, Bright's disease, neurasthenia, hysteria or anemia. It is most often met with in early adult life, and women are more often affected than men. It is, however, occasionally seen even in children, and in old people as well.

The simplest form of the disease is sometimes called "dead fingers." In such a case the fingers of the patient become dead white or a bluish white, and actually look as if they belonged to a dead person. The local circulation may be so completely obstructed that the fingers will not bleed even if they are cut. Sometimes the condition lasts only a few minutes, but it may go on for several hours, or even days. Raynaud called it "local syncope," because the affected finger or toe acts as if it had really fainted from loss of blood, although the circulation is normal in the rest of the body. The condition is believed to be caused by spasms in some of the small arteries.

In the more severe form of Raynaud's disease the affected part turns purple instead of white and becomes swollen and tingling, just as it would if the circulation were impeded by a string tied tightly round the finger.

In the most severe form of all—which is happily not frequent—gangrene occurs; that happens only when the attacks have been so frequent that the circulation is cut off most of the time. In an ordinary attack of "dead fingers" massage is helpful, although it should not be roughly or ignorantly applied, since the skin is drained of its life for the time being, and can be easily broken. Avoid exposure to cold and protect the extremities carefully by warm clothing. Those who are subject to these attacks are generally better off in a warm climate.—Youth's Companion.

G. O. P. HOPES FOR SENATE MAJORITY

Must Gain Nine Seats at Next Election However.

TO FILL MANY VACANCIES.

Terms of Thirty-two Senators Expire. President Keeps in Physical Condition by Daily Exercise, and Delicate Foreign Complications Fail to Keep Him From Golf Links.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 22.—[Special.]—The Democrats have a majority of sixteen in the new senate. If La Follette and Poindexter should vote with them their majority would be increased to twenty, but it is only on special occasions that these senators support the Democrats. But the majority of sixteen is enough for all purposes if the majority can work together.

The Republicans see a possibility of overturning that majority and gaining control of the senate in the election next year. It would mean the gaining of nine seats now held by the Democrats to accomplish any such result, and that would be going some. In fact, it would mean a landslide all along the line. The Republicans would have to hold all the seats they now have and win seats now held by Democrats in Arizona, West Virginia, Nebraska, Maine, Indiana, New Jersey, Montana, New York and Nevada. Of course there is the possibility of winning in Maryland, as that state once had two Republican senators.

Mistake of Last Year.

Republicans are bitterly bemoaning the mistake they made last year in letting three or four senatorial seats slip away from them because they thought it was no use. They did not really expect to lose in Wisconsin, South Dakota and California, but they saw little hope in New York and Ohio. They were counting on the Progressives remaining out for at least another election.

Of the thirty-two vacancies which will be filled by next year's election only five are in the south. One in Maryland and one in Missouri are far enough north to give the Republicans a fighting chance.

Keeps to His Golf.

Troubles do not come to the administration so thick and fast that the president is not able to throw them aside for a few hours each day and devote himself to a game of golf. The blustery March days did not keep Mr. Wilson from getting his exercise. Many people believe that he is content to remain in Washington right along if he can have time for his daily game. His physician insists that he must take the game as a sort of medicine.

Clarke's Indorsement.

It was a perfunctory resolution which praised the fairness and careful presiding qualities of Vice President Marshall, but another which was put through the senate praising the president pro tem. was full of bunk as well as perfunctory, for Clarke had not presided much; he had been absent a great deal. It was noticed that all the votes in favor of the resolution came from the Republican side. The Democrats were still too sore because Clarke had thrown them on the shipping bill to vote for it, but they did not want to make the matter personal and vote against it. The sardonic grin on the face of the Arkansas senator showed that he was not in the least fooled by the resolution.

Didn't Get Him Twice.

Senator Thornton of Louisiana, who served a short term from that state, was shy of everybody connected with the newspapers for a long time after he came to Washington. The photographer who undertook to get his picture was driven forth from his office, while the man who suggested that he would like to "write up the senator" was cut off with a frown and a growl. Thornton had had experience. A man some time before, just as he was beginning his political career, gave him a writeup and printed his picture in some sort of a publication and stung him for $200. And that made Thornton shy when anybody talked pictures or writeups to him.

Not as in the Old Days.

In the old days it would have been impossible for a senator to take a ranking position in the senate or on committees during his first term. The time was when a man would be met with frowns if he undertook to make a speech during the first session he was in the senate unless it was to explain something in which his state was interested, but he was not expected to engage in general debate on political topics or policies. It was absurd, of course, but tradition dies hard. Now no attempt is made to muzzle a senator. In fact, it would utterly fail.

Not Very Serious.

Senator Weeks of Massachusetts refuses to take his presidential boom seriously. In fact, he has an eye out as to other available presidential timber. Of course he is not going to make any objection to the talk, for it can do him no harm, and he will gain prestige by receiving votes in the convention, but he will not allow it to keep him awake nights.

LIKE CAVE MEN

fades, the night seems darker than ever.

The bullets whistle and shriek overhead instantly and all the night it will be like this, noises and lights, noises and lights. The night is filled with danger and surprises. Daylight charges were never made, it was in the night time, in the smallest weirdest hours that either the Germans left their trenches or we left ours, to run ahead into a hand to hand stabbing affray, with the enemy. The grey of morning is a sight of good cheer. In our trenches we looked to see if we could then see the corpses caught on the barbed wire, which had been fluttering there for some time, still in its place. The dead man lay there through the nights and days. The French called this grotesque heap, the juggler, because it was stretched out in the fashion Japanese jugglers adopt.

When the rage of the "juggler" were plainly seen, then we know the morning had really come, another night of madness had passed and we might sleep until the night lights and the night noises broke out again at sunset.

Wise Girl.

"What? You're going to marry Tom Speed? Why, he's awful!"

"What makes you think so?"

"I hear he's been blackballed by every club in town."

"Yes, I heard so too. That sort of husband won't have much excuse for staying out nights, will he?"—Cleveland Leader.

BASEBALL CURVES

At Jacksonville, Florida, the baseball season is now officially opened. Roger Bresnahan was chased from the field by Umpire Dominick Delaney for disputing several decisions in a game with the Athletics which the Cubs won, 9 to 0.

Early in the practice at Jacksonville, Leslie Joe Bullet Bush sprained his ankle and split his thumb. Otherwise he is all right. However, Bush usually starts a season that way and the idea that he will fill a hospital bed is rudely disturbed when he stands on the slab and strikes 'em out when the regular season opens.

The lists at the Chamber of Commerce are getting signatures every day taking out memberships in the new Athletic organization. And the players, a good sign, are joining too.

SCOTT'S MISSION SUCCEEDS

General Induces Piute Indians to Lay Down Arms.

Bluff, Utah, March 22.—The Piute uprising in Utah ended when Brigadier General Hugh L. Scott returned to Bluff with Chief Old Polk, his son, Tse-negat, Chief Posey and Posey's oldest son.

The capture of the ringleaders by the United States army officer and his small party of personal escorts accomplished the peaceful settlement of the rebellion by the Indians which had resulted in the deaths of six men and the wounding of many others in the early fighting between a posse and the redskins.

The prisoners brought here were sullen and uncommunicative. General Scott has assured them, however, that they will be given fair play.
